Join us for the Lillian E. Smith Symposium - March 14!

Throughout her career as a writer and humanitarian, Lillian Smith examined how the arts engage people around issues of social injustice, segregation, and isolation.

Through storytelling and conversation with special guest speakers moderated by acclaimed scholar and writer Barbara Brown Taylor, this inaugural symposium will challenge participants not only to contemplate sensitivities and struggles surrounding race relations, but to initiate social change in their own spheres of influence.

Please join us as we seek to engage current and future generations around the values and convictions that shaped the life and work of Lillian Smith.
