Piedmont Class of 2018 hits campus

The Class of 2018, which for the second year in a row marks the largest freshman class ever, moved into the dorms last month to kick off the new academic year. After much sweat and many tears, parents left the campus at 3 p.m., as the new residents began to learn about their surroundings and gather on the Quad for a welcome from President James Mellichamp and a picnic.

Welcome Week activities continued with more meetings, including Piedmont 1101, an introduction to college life; safety, health and wellness programs; comedy sketches; placement tests; and a Student Life Festival.

See additional photos from move in [here].

Construction to start on new Student Village

Piedmont College will soon begin construction on a new Student Village that will house up to 192 resident students. Located on college property off of the Demorest-Mt. Airy Highway, the Student Village will include a group of 12 two-story, apartment-style buildings. Each building will include four apartments with four bedrooms, two bathrooms, and a small kitchen. Second floor units will have a balcony and first floor units will have a patio area.

The Student Village will house upperclassmen, graduate students, and possibly married students. Construction is expected to be completed in time for residents to move in for the Fall 2015 semester. President Mellichamp said the additional housing is needed as the college’s nine residence halls are at maximum capacity with more than 600 students.

More News:
Piedmont College launches new website
Athens Hustle for Hunger set for Oct. 25
Upcoming Alumni Events

Helpful Links:
Fine Arts Calendar
Piedmont College Athletics
Submit a Classnote